

Stop. Observe. Ask. Respond to Human Trafficking
A Training for Health Care and Social Service Providers

Take a Second Look

The person you are seeing may be a victim of Human Trafficking

1 in 6

Estimated number of endangered runaway youth that are likely sex trafficking victims<sup>1</sup>

Approximate percent of sex trafficking victims that have come in contact with health care professionals<sup>2</sup>

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services is pleased to present Stop. Observe. Ask. Respond to Human Trafficking (SOAR), which is a three-hour training on human trafficking for healthcare providers, social workers, public health professionals, and behavioral health professionals.

Jointly provided by Postgraduate Institute for Medicine and U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Postgraduate Institute for Medicine
Professional Excellence in Medical Education

For activity and complete accreditation information and to enroll in the SOAR training, visit <http://www.acf.gov/programs/endtrafficking/initiatives/soar>

1. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. "Child Sex Trafficking." <http://www.missingkids.org/1in6>

2. Lederer, L. and Wetzel C.A. The health consequences of sex trafficking and their implications for identifying victims in facilities. The Annals of Health Law. 2014;23(1):61-91